Practice These Patterns

Part 1:

Showmanship with AQHA Professional Horsewoman Jenny Jordan Frid

“When I first saw this showmanship pattern, I thought it was an easy pattern,” Jenny says. “But the more I looked, the more the tricky details popped out at me.

“I believe any exhibitor can conquer this pattern. I’m going to break down this pattern into small pieces so you can practice at home along with us. But before you do, I have some thoughts to share about practice.”

Part 2:

Horsemanship with AQHA Professional Horsewoman Jill Gomes Newcomb

“Sometimes when exhibitors look at patterns, they can become overwhelmed by the length of those patterns and think they can’t perform them,” Jill says. “But I think any exhibitor can perform any pattern in any class: Every pattern is made up of pieces that you already know as part of your normal routine.

“The trick to making a pattern correct is breaking it down into pieces so you can see what you already know and make a plan to ride it.”

After she walks readers through an in-depth analysis of the horsemanship practice pattern, Jill then offers advice for how to put it all together, plus the three things to concentrate on when that time comes.

Part 3:

Hunt seat equitation with AQHA Professional Horsewoman Stephanie Lynn

“It’s easy to get overwhelmed by a pattern like this hunt seat equitation one,” Stephanie says. “There are a lot of pieces and parts to put together, and I think it’s important to ease into it with a soft eye, not for the parts that might be difficult but the parts where you’re going to shine.”

Before Stephanie gets into the details of the pattern, she explains how to perform a successful trot-through and why readers will want to add it to their practice plan. Next, she moves into “What the Judges Want.”

Following the in-depth pattern analysis, Stephanie moves into winning exercises to improve the hand gallop and engage the hindquarters.

Changes Coming to AQHA Show Approval, Processing Fees

October 9, 2017 | Filed under: Club & Show News, Club and Show News | Posted by: equine

AQHA Publicity

The American Quarter Horse Association Executive Committee approved changes to show approval fees, which will go into effect for show approval applications received after October 6, 2017, and processing fees, which will increase from $5 to $6 on January 1, 2018. Until this point, fees have remained unchanged since 2012.

“I want to thank the show approval task force for taking on the challenge of studying our current show approval fees. The task force recommended lowering fees for AQHA shows under 500 entries, which affects the vast majority of our events and includes up to a 60-percent reduction for some,” said AQHA Executive Vice President Craig Huffhines. “The Executive Committee recognizes the financial sensitivity felt by our smaller shows and adopted this recommendation to lower the fees for these shows.”

“The Executive Committee also realizes the need to make difficult decisions when necessary and fully understands the obligation to keep programs like the show department solvent for our membership,” Huffhines continued. “Therefore, the largest AQHA shows will see an increase in their show approval fees. With the understanding that those events with more than 2,500 entries are better positioned to handle the higher fees implemented by the Executive Committee.”

NEW SHOW APPROVAL FEES

(effective October 6, 2017)

of entries	approval fee
5,000+	$3,000
2,500-4,999	$2,000
1,000-2,499	$750
500-999	$500
1-499*	$100
Dressage/EWD/CMS	$50

Includes Introductory, Level 1, Rookie, Versatility Ranch Horse, new special event or new show*
